St. Mary's County Celebrates Grand Opening of Carver Community Arts Center & Makerspace

LEONARDTOWN, MD – November 17, 2026 – The Commissioners of St. Mary's County (CSMC) joined community partners, local artists and residents today to celebrate the grand opening of the Carver Community Arts Center & Makerspace in Lexington Park, marking an exciting milestone in expanding access to arts, education and creative opportunities in St. Mary's County.

Located at 47382 Lincoln Ave. within the Carver Recreation Center, the new Makerspace transforms approximately 5,000 square feet of the facility into a creative hub where visitors can explore new interests, develop skills and turn their ideas into reality.

The center features a variety of specialized workspaces and equipment, including pottery and glazing studios, stained glass and fused glass work areas, woodworking and metalworking shops, a machining and welding center and dedicated project space. Visitors will also have access to modern technology, including 3D printers, laser cutting machines, digital fabrication equipment and sewing machines.

"This is an exciting day for St. Mary's County and an important investment in the creative future of our community," said Commissioner President James R. "Randy" Guy. "The arts bring people together, inspire innovation and enrich our quality of life. By creating a space where residents of all ages and backgrounds can learn, collaborate and express themselves, we're opening doors to opportunities that haven't always been readily available in our county."

The project was made possible through a collaborative partnership between St. Mary's County Government's Department of Recreation & Parks, PaxSpace and the St. Mary's County Arts Council, with funding support from TEDCO and the Maryland State Arts Council.

"This Makerspace represents years of vision, dedication and collaboration to create something truly special for our community," said Susie Glauner, Executive Director of the St. Mary's County Arts Council. "Our goal has always been to make the arts more accessible and provide a welcoming place where creativity can thrive. Whether someone is an experienced artist or trying something new for the first time, we hope this space will inspire people to discover new talents, share ideas and connect with one another. We're incredibly grateful to our partners and supporters who helped make this vision a reality."

The Makerspace represents a significant investment in the continued revitalization of the Carver Recreation Center, a historic community landmark that once served as George Washington Carver Elementary School. The facility continues to serve as an important gathering place for residents, offering recreational, educational and cultural programming.

During the grand opening celebration, attendees had an opportunity to tour the newly renovated space, explore its equipment and work areas and learn more about the creative opportunities the center will offer.

The Carver Community Arts Center & Makerspace will provide a welcoming environment for artists, makers, entrepreneurs, students and community members to connect, collaborate and explore their creativity.
